Eastern Bridge Theatre Troupe is happy to announce that preparations for our second installment, entitled "Unheard Female Voices - Poetry Event," are underway.

They aim to give a platform to up-and-coming poets and storytellers to share their poetry and art with a New York audience.

They are accepting submissions for fearless individuals, especially foreign and female-identifying poets, who would like to present their work.

Potential collaborators can reach out to them at eastern.bridge.theater@gmail.com.

You can also learn about our upcoming events at <https://www.indiegogo.com/projects/foreign-voices-are-us> and at our website: <https://www.easternbridgetheatre.com/>.

The reading will be directed by Anna Rak and is produced by Cristina Sebastian and Yuching Tsai.

“Foreign Voices are Us” is a series of events produced by Eastern Bridge Theatre Troupe, an artist collective that’s mostly made up of foreign-born, female identifying artists.

Their first installment, “Let’s Build a Bridge - Not a Wall: an adaptation of Charles Mee’s works” was directed by Anna Rak and was “Set around a bench in Brooklyn Bridge Park, “Lets Build a Bridge, Not a Wall” was an improvised, intimate look into authentic conversations and relationships of different New Yorkers.
