Pop star Justin Bieber used graffiti to raise money for the victims of Super Typhoon Yolanda (Haiyan) in the Philippines.

TMZ reports that the "Baby" singer, along with his friend Milk Tyson, spray painted a Los Angeles wall on Nov. 17.

It featured the words "Pray 4 Philippines," with the image of hands in prayer.

Justin posted a photo of him in a prayer position beside his work, with the caption, "We all can help."

Milk also posted the photo, with a caption saying the two "are gonna do [something] big to give back to the victims of the tragedy. #PrayForThePhilippines."

According to TMZ, Bieber plans to auction off a signed picture of his graffiti along with the used spray paint cans.

The money will be donated to a typhoon relief group in the Philippines.
