Reynolds has appeared in countless films but is perhaps best known for her breakout role in Singin' in the Rain at the young age of 20.

Fisher, who played the iconic role of Princess Leia in the Star Wars films franchise, chose a flattering black silk chiffon, empire-cut gown that featured a hand-beaded bodice and beaded lace sleeves.
