Philippine entertainment superstars Jose Manalo, Wally Bayola, Paolo Ballesteros, Maine Mendoza and Alden Richards will be in town next week to display their comedic, dancing and singing skills to the New York tri-state area.

The show, Kalyeserye sa US featuring AIDub & The Lolos, will be held at the Kings Theatre in Brooklyn on April 12, 2017.

According to Wikipedia, the enormously popular Kalyeserye is a soap opera parody segment on the noontime variety show Eat Bulaga! on GMA Network in the Philippines and worldwide through GMA Pinoy TV.

The segment is focused on AIDub (Mendoza and Richards), the fictional couple pairing — or “love team” as it is more commonly known in the Philippines.

The two only communicate via lip-syncing to various pop songs and movie audio clips, as well as written messages, and interact only on the show’s split-screen frame.

The show features live improvisation from Richards, Mendoza, Bayola, Manalo and Ballesteros who all play various roles, while the other hosts of Eat Bulaga! located in the studio serve as live commentators.

The Lolos deliver a euphoric variety of roles which leaves the audience laughing hysterically.

Meanwhile, Mendoza and Richards are both considered to have a wide influence on the Internet and social media.

Film roles Mendoza starred in include “My Bebe Love: #KiligPaMore,” “Imagine You and Me” and “Enteng Kabisote 10 and the Abangers.”
